“ I sit here parked in the driveway, not wanting to go inside. Reflecting, I have so much to think about, and be grateful for.

I want to first say, thank you for the love and light my family and I are receiving right now. There will be more thanks to come as the wound is extremely deep and very fresh. Thank you doesn't even equate, words can't express the way love and support come during times like these.

My earliest memories of love in my life have been with Gram.

So much gratitude, even with so much pain I'm experiencing. Between getting to hold her hands yesterday at the Dr, telling her to relax her grip (literally she clinched her hands, I guess from the dementia) and letting her know it was me with her and she could relax. To finding comfort that, even though that dementia was taking it's toll on her, she still knew my sister and I until the end.

She was tired, we knew this. I whispered to her a few times that it was "ok to let go" in the figurative sense. Because, although I could never wrap my head around her "leaving," I knew it was time. With the meds she had been on, it was hard for her to keep her eyes open. It was difficult for my sister and I, but I can't begin to imagine how hard it may have been for her. Such a tough cookie she was. A true fighter until the bitter end.

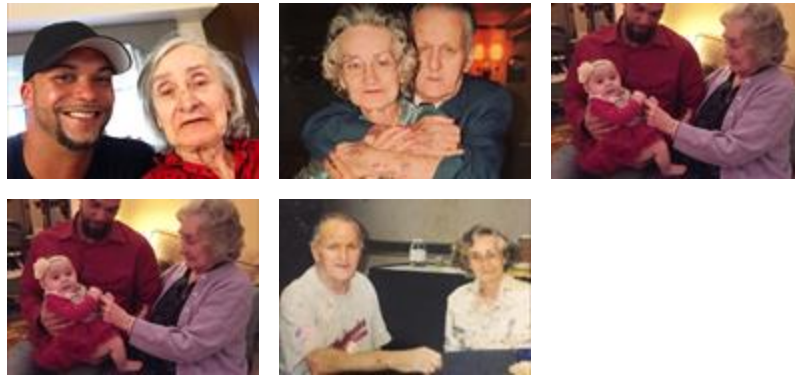

Then, this afternoon while I was feeling funky, a song popped into my head. Stevie Wonder, "I Just Called To Say I Love You." One of her true favorites, that she sang regularly when we were kids. Before getting the terrible news, that's the song that popped into my head. I sent it to my sister and reminded her how much Gram loved that song.

I'm sitting here realizing how gracious God is to allow Gram to "say goodbye" in her own way this afternoon. What a miracle it is to be able to even recognize that.

Again, thank you for the texts, fb messages and love being sent. It's appreciated beyond words. To my sister, Louise, I will hold you down like no brother ever has. You have my word. I love you so much.

For a "man's man" who doesn't cry much, my eyes and chest hurt and I'm snotty as hell.

Thanks for reading.

To my Brother Gabe and Sister Louise, God gave you your Gram to be the cement holding you two together throughout the years.,she comforted you both through your trials and tribulations. Find comfort and peace in knowing the love you all shared will never die but the pain of her loss will always be a remembrance of that unconditional love which will never die. . She is physically gone but her spirit will live on forever. Love you all , your sis Karen

Louise was my only cousin in America on my fathers side of the family. We spent many happy times together as children. Every summer my family would drive from Philadelphia to Caldwell for me to stay 2 weeks with Louise and my aunt and uncle. What great memories. At Christmas they would come to Philadelphia to spend the holidays with our family. They were special times I cherish and remember with love. Love you my dear cousin and will miss you.

TY Aunt Lonnie. I love you and calling you to say she passed broke my heart.. The train to Philly. The chocolate from Germany. I am so grateful to Pauline my beautiful Grandma.

Aunt Lonnie, when she fell in September and fractured her neck, I was visiting with her in the hospital. It was one of our last conversations. She pointed at the window and told me that you, Aunt Margaret and Uncle Bill lived close by and she wanted to be sure that I stopped to say hello to you before I headed back to NJ. She was confused for sometime, but it is comforting to know that she had you all on her mind.

Thank you for telling me this. When I talked to her on her birthday she was very coherent and remembered many things about our youth. It was easy to talk to her about years ago but she was confused about current times. She was so fortunate to have such caring grandchildren (you and Gabe) in her life, and I'm sure her great-grandchildren have wonderful memories of her. My thoughts and prayers are with you and the family.
